CURLEY SWEEPS TO VICTORY

Sheriff Keliher Loses, Drops Dead

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

With a plurality of 42,129 votes, former Governor James M. Curley today was acclaimed as the hero of the most dramatic comeback in the history of Massachusetts politics.

As Democratic nominee for governor, the state's chief executive of 1934 and 1935 will face Leverett Saltonstall of Newton in the November election.

Saltonstall swept the Republican race for governor with a total of 322,534 votes against the 47,994 cast for his nearest rival, William H. McMasters, Cambridge, advocate of the Townsend plan.

The triumph of Curley, however, was the highlight of a Democratic primary race that was in doubt until an early hour today.

It erased the stigma of two recent defeats of the veteran campaigner at the hands of younger men—the hands of Henry Cabot Lodge in the U. S. Senate race of 1936 and last fall's mayoralty fight that saw Murice Tobin emerge the victor.

SWEEPS TO VICTORY

Curley polled a total of 210,115 throughout the state while the best Governor Hurley could do was 167,986. The former governor out-polled his youthful rival, Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly by a vote of more than 2 to 1, Kelly receiving 101,850.

Former Congressman Richard M. Russell, who carried the label of President Roosevelt's "New Deal," was given only 31,160 votes.

Dramatic though the Curley victory was, however, it was tragically shadowed by the sudden death of Sheriff John A. Keliher which occurred as tabulators were recording the veteran sheriff's defeat at the hands of City Councillor John F. Dowd.

Curley and Keliher, both veterans of Boston politics, were bosom friends, but the exhausted Democratic nominee was asleep early today when the death of the veteran sheriff became known.

Boston Democrats paid glowing tribute to Curley, giving him a 2 to 1 margin over Governor Hurley

SHERIFF KELIHER
Death beats ballots

Beaten for Democratic nomination for the first time in the 22 years he had held his office, veteran Sheriff John A. Keliher of Suffolk County was spared the sting of defeat today.

He died of heart failure, just before midnight, at his home in Charles street. He was 70 years old.

Doctors said his sudden end was caused in large part by excitement of the losing campaign he had waged against City Councillor John F. Dowd, for endorsement of the Democratic party.

Although he lost the Democratic nomination, Sheriff Keliher won the Republican nomination, for which he was also a candidate. Thus his death results in a vacancy on the Republican ballot.

Legal and political authorities said today that, in order to fill this vacancy with a candidate

Nichols, Foley in Run-Off

Former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols and District Attorney William J. Foley, foes a year ago in the Boston mayoralty contest in which both were defeated, will meet in the political arena again in November as opposing candidates for election as district attorney of Suffolk County.

Nichols won the Republican nomination to that post and Foley was renominated by the Democrats for a fourth term in that office. Nichols easily outstripped former Representative Bernard Ginsberg while Foley defeated Owen A. Gallagher, former chairman of the Boston street commission. Foley also defeated Nichols who sought both nominations.

Foley's vote in 115 out of a total of 388 Boston precincts was 17,353. Gallagher's vote was 11,585. Vote of the three other candidates for the Democratic nomination was, Joseph L. Kaplan, 1732; John Martin Boyle, 503, and former Mayor Nichols 2272.

Tragedy in N. E. Storm's Path

Flood Dead 11; Hundreds Flee

Known death toll mounted to 11 and damage soared into millions today as rain-sodden New England faced its worst flood peril since the disaster of 1927.

Adding to the graveness of the situation, further heavy rains were officially predicted.

While authorities of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Connecticut swung into emergency action, hundreds of families fled their homes, thousands were marooned and rail and highway routes were blocked.

Unreported loss of life in many of the flooded areas was feared.

Polluted water supplies and cancelled food deliveries threatened numerous districts with epidemic and hunger.

In Massachusetts, Commissioner of Public Safety Eugene McSweeney ordered 100 state troopers mobilized into rescue squads to aid men, women and children in distress in hard hit areas including those about Barre, Winchendon, Palmer and Southbridge.

RESCUE SQUADS READY

Th troopers were formed into motorized units, each with at least one portable boat carried on a trailer.

Their first specific mission was to rescue 21 families reported stranded in Barre Plains.

They were also instructed to attempt to reach Waterville, near Winchendon.

Local police were evacuating Waterville's whole population of 500 after virtual destruction of the town by raging Miller's river.

Connecticut state officials warned the public that disaster impended, quoting U. S. weather bureau observers as saying the Connecticut river would reach a level nine feet above danger mark before nightfall.

Hartford and New Haven were flooded, Willimantic and Stafford isolated and highway and rail communication crippled.

TOWNS UNDER WATER

In New Hampshire, flood committees took over emergency control of menaced areas. Tilton and Keene were cities hardest hit today.

At North Brookfield, in Massachusetts, a woman nurse, on an errand of mercy to attend an expectant mother, was drowned as flood water trapped her in a stalled automobile.

At Dedham, Henry Bingham, 66, a florist, drowned when his auto skidded into the Charles river.

Three of the eleven fatalities reported to date were in a freight train derailment at East Deerfield.

DROWN IN RIVERS

Four youths drowned at Fort Kent, Me., when their auto plunged into a river. Two Maine children were killed in auto accidents attributed to weather conditions.

In Massachusetts, the Chicopee, Miller's, Nashua, Quinebaug and Blackstone rivers were causing greatest damage.

In New Hampshire, the Winnepesaukee river and Ashuelot river were menacing Tilton and Keene.

Everywhere, hundreds of families were fleeing or preparing to flee their homes in low lying areas.

The whole town of Southbridge was flooded, with thousands marooned.

The Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, greatest and most formidable menaces of all, were lapping close to high water danger marks,

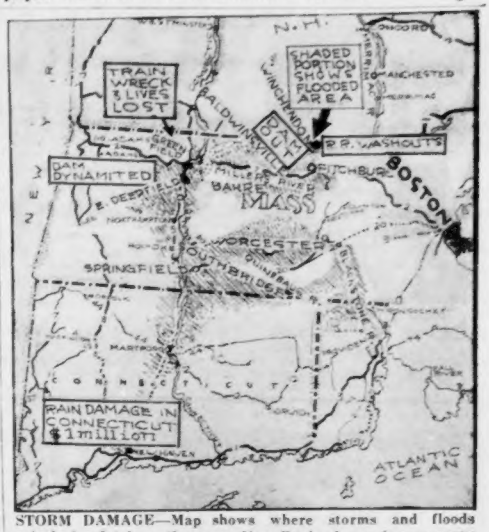
CAREER AHEAD — Remembered for her "upside-down" tummy three years ago, Alyce Jane McHenry, now 15, tells New York reporters she's in town pursuing a dramaic career. The girl won health in a Fall River, Mass., hospital after her life had been despaired of.



STORM DAMAGE—Map shows where storms and floods splashed a fatal swath across New England, causing property damage that runs into many thousands of dollars.

Nurse Drowns on Errand Of Mercy, Doctor Rescued

NORTH BROOKFIELD, Sept. 21—Trapped in a stalled automobile in the path of a torrent released by a bursting dam, a woman nurse was drowned here today.

She met her death heroically, on a mercy errand with a North Brookfield doctor to attend an expectant mother.

Attempting to travel a highway already partly under water, the physician, Dr. Thomas J. O'Boyle, 47, and the nurse, Mrs. Lina Woodis, 35, drove into a washout.

Before they could climb out of their car, a wave poured down upon them from Doane's pond where a dam had collapsed.

Clinging desperately to the auto Dr. O'Boyle and Mrs. Woodis kept their heads above water for 20 minutes. Then the nurse's hold was broken and she was swept away.

Her body was found a mile downstream.

Just as the doctor was about to be swept away also, farmers in a heavy truck came near enough to throw him a rope. Near collapse, he was taken to a neighboring home.

Mrs. Woodis was the mother of three children.

Crack B. & M. Train Hops Rails, Two Men Injured

WINCHENDON, Sept. 21—Two trainmen were injured here today and 30 passengers shaken when the crack "Mount Royal," Boston-to-Montreal express, was derailed, pitching the engine, a mail car and two baggage cars down a 30-foot embankment.

The accident was the second caused by a washout in two days.

The first, a derailment at East Deerfield, cost three lives. Two trainmen were killed when a freight train toppled from the tracks and an engineer died later of burns.

Today, one sleeper, a baggage car and a locomotive were off the rails, blocking traffic on the line.

Passengers had close calls, but escaped injury.

The injured were Fireman John H. Feldermann, 53, of Arlington street, Somerville, and Baggageman Alfred Cummings, 59, of Forest street, Wakefield, both of whom suffered face and head lacerations.

Charles H. Brooks of Boston, the engineer, escaped injury by climbing out the cab window as the engine toppled.

Camera Man Sees Flood Wiping Out Bay State Town

WATERVILLE, Sept. 21—I got the pictures, boss. And what pictures!

A flooded river, roaring 20 feet over its banks, ripping a town to pieces while men, women and children sit on this muddy hill here and watch their houses washed away.

The highways in both directions are under water, so it looks like me and my pictures won't be going anywhere, for some time to come.

But here's the story, anyhow.

They say Miller's river here came up 20 feet in 60 minutes. Dams are out all up the line.

First thing anybody knew, the water was lapping at the houses all along Main street, and cops were pounding at the doors.

HOMES SWEPT AWAY

It was a case of get everybody out and come up to higher ground before they were trapped and drowned.

Nobody had a chance to save anything. Some didn't have time to dress. Mothers carried their babies and the big kids helped the little ones.

I'm telling you, boss, they didn't make it any too quick.

Right now those houses are coming to pieces like cardboard.

The river tore into the big pail factory and bobbin mill here and washed loose hundreds of heavy logs, piled up to be sawed into lumber.

MAROONED ON HILL

These logs and a couple of dozen telegraph poles, snapped off by the flood, are being hammered like battering rams up against the walls of houses and business buildings.

It doesn't take but a few minutes of that—and down goes your home or shop.

There are beds and chairs and all kinds of household furniture floating down the river.

Hen pens have broken from their foundations and go bobbing along, with chickens and roosters perched on top.

There's been a lot of pigs and other livestock drowned.

About 500 or more people in the town, they tell me, and I guess they're all homeless now.

And like me, wet and hungry, marooned on this hill.

Flood Victim's Daughter Dies

With the sad message that his daughter was dead in Boston, police sought today to reach Arthur O'Hara, a salesman, marooned on a flood-surrounded train at West Brookfield.

State troopers said they would attempt to row to the train in a boat and bring O'Hara ashore. An auto awaited him at Leicester.

Red Flays 2 Powers, Sees Great War Near

GENEVA, Sept. 21 (AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Russia's foreign commissar, today accused France and Great Britain of capitulating to Adolf Hitler's demands and disclosed they had ignored Russia's offer of military help to protect Czechoslovakia.

The foreign commissar, in a scathing denunciation of Lague of Nation powers, said Russia stood ready to back up any collective action in defense of Czechoslovakia with arms and men.

In what he left unsaid, however, assembly delegates saw a statement that unless France fights for Czechoslovakia under the terms of the French-Czechoslovak agreement, Soviet Russia would do nothing to help Prague.

He accused Britain and France of avoiding a "problematical war today in return for a certain and large-scale war tomorrow."

Addressing the League of Nations assembly, Russia's spokesman said the price the two western democracies were considering paying to prevent war over Czechoslovakia was "satisfying the appetites of insatiable aggressors by the destruction and mutilation of sovereign states."

Litvinoff declared flatly:

"Our war department is ready immediately to participate in conference with representatives of the French and Czechoslovak war departments in order to discuss measures appropriate to the moment."

He said this Russian stand was framed and sent to the Czechoslovak government two days ago and to France a few days before the League assembly began to deliberate on Sept. 12.

The Fighting Jew In Palestine

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

(Editor's Note: Nearly 2000 persons have been killed in the two years of war waged by Arabs to drive the Jews into the sea and the British out of Palestine, H. R. Knickerbocker, noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, reveals in the following article, third of a series of twelve on "War In the Holy Land.")

World copyright, 1938, by International News Service. Reproduction in whole or part forbidden.

JERUSALEM (INS)—Around the city of Jerusalem there reigns a sacred quiet. It is the most silent city in the world at night.

There are neither the noises of a city nor the sounds of a countryside. No street cars, nor automobiles, not even the footsteps of men, disturb the silence after midnight, and only the far-off crowing of a cock may be heard towards dawn.

There are no night resorts, no nightclubs or cabarets. It is the only city in all the Orient without a trace of public vice. Its holy character is kept by Moslem, Jew and Christian.

Yet Jerusalem is the capital of the most murderous country in the world today.

Five hundred Jews are ready to take their stations at the alarm. Without them no Jewish family could sleep, for the word has gone around that the Arabs, fed on the success of their terror, intend to raid the Holy City itself.

SMASHING BLOW

To deal one great smashing blow at British prestige and Jewish security, the Arab bandits, it is rumored, plan to assault Jerusalem. Several hundred of them, in the garb of Fellahin, peasants, would enter the city by twos and threes, and at a given signal attack, not merely Jewish homes, but the Jewish Agency's great citadel, the King David Hotel, the government offices. Shoot, kill, burn, rapidly, then flee.

That is a nightmare not talked about above a whisper, but present in the backs of the minds of those who, as all the Jews in Palestine, remember that more than 350 have been killed in the last two years and 1000 wounded by Arab bandits.

"Why?" I asked Raghob Bey Al Nashashibi, "is such a Terror possible?"

"Have you ever been out at night in Jerusalem; and did you ever seen a British policeman or any policeman on the streets after midnight?" returned the handsome old Arab leader.

"If you go out tonight and see a policeman I want you to go to a telephone and call me, and I will say 'Raghob is wrong."

TESTS STATEMENT

That night I set out to test his statement. After midnight I walked with an Englishman through the old Arab city.

A few stray cats crept noiselessly across our path. Now and then an Arab sleeping in a doorway raised his head to peer at the unaccustomed passerby. But not one policeman did we see in an hour's wandering.

Jews in Jerusalem are protected by numbers. Thousands of Jews on the land go to bed each night thinking of the fate that befell the tiny settlement of Kiryath-Harosheth.

I visited this poverty-stricken colony in the Valley of Jezreel, not far from Haifa. In it live for the most part Haifa workers, and one of them was Shmuel Guttermann, 35, with his wife, Lotte, 30, and their little daughter, Bella, two years old.

Shmuel, a baker, had worked so hard that he was able to buy a one-room house on a tiny plot of land. All wek Shmuel worked in Haifa and on Friday and Saturdays at home he served without pay as one of the colony's watchmen.

CREEP TO DOOR

On one night off he was asleep, and his wife slept next him with their baby in her arms. Just before midnight a group of Arabs crept to the door of the little Shmuel house, put their rifles next the heads of the sleeping parents and the baby, fired, then with knives cut the throats of all three.

They then set fire to the house, and ran to the next one where Mrs. Regina Spigler, 32 her son Jacob, 11, and her daughter Clara, 5, were sleeping.

They shot the mother and the son. The son staggered away into the yard, where he fell dead. They fired at the five-year-old girl, but missed her. Miraculously, she escaped.

This sort of thing reads dully in a police report, but it makes you shiver when you stand by the graves.

The killing of defenseless women and children has become a typical characteristic of the Arab terror. Little Rachel Raznik, 13, was sitting in a hut belonging to her sister in the Gan Hashomron settlement when two Arabs, first peering in to see that she was alone, shot her in the stomach.

Eight young Jewish girl laborers started home from work in a cart near Rehovoth, accompanied by two Arab laborers. Another Arab pulled up on a bicycle, whispered to the Arab laborers, who alighted.

FIRES TWO SHOTS

A little further on an Arab leaning against a gate suddenly whipped out his revolver and fired two shots. One of them struck a 16-year-old girl Rivka Lehrer, in the back, and killed her instantly.

Even more impressive is the manner in which the entire family of Benjamin Babayew, 32, his wife Zivia 28, and their seven-year-old daughter were wiped out in less than a minute.

They were bicycling. Arabs from an orange field fired one shot. It struck the father in the head, killing him instantly. As he fell, they shot the child in the stomach. The mother lost control of her bicycle and fell to the ground. The Arabs came out of the grove, took careful aim and shot her through the head.

All the murders herewith described have taken place within the last two months. They are not exceptional, but daily events. They illustrate the degree to which the British government has failed in the fundamental duty of government, to protect the lives of its citizens.

What effect has the Terror had upon the Jews? Are they giving in? Do they show signs of quitting? A visit to their front line on the frontier, deep within the Arab country, will give the answer.

(The fourth chapter in this revealing series will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

CZECHS SURRENDER

Revolt Peril Faces Nation

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PRAGUE, Sept. 21—Menaced by four armies and overwhelmed by diplomacy, Czechoslovakia late today formally announced unconditional acceptance of the Anglo-French proposal for dismemberment of central Europe's last stronghold or democracy.

The cabinet of President Eduard Benes, after a night of hesitation, has decided at 9 a. m. to capitulate to the demands of Great Britain and France and to the might of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's armies.

But grasping at straws in the hope some miracle might enable further resistance, the government delayed until a late hour this afternoon before officially notifying the British and French ministers of its fateful decision.

It was exactly 5 p. m., eight full hours after the cabinet had made its first decision, that Foreign Minister Kamil Krofta called in Basil Newton and Victor Delacroix, British and French ministers, and handed them Czechoslovakia's note formally accepting the German demands.

"IRRESISTIBLE PRESSURE"

The official announcement is reported to have said:

"Under irresistible pressure on the part of the British and French ministers, the Czech government has accepted the Anglo-French plan.

In accepting the plan the Czech government stipulates that if Czechoslovakia is attacked nevertheless, Great Britain and France will come to her aid."

Powerful new pressure was brought to bear on Prague by Britain and France during the day.

This finally succeeded in inducing President Benes and his cabinet to stand on their early morning decision of capitulation despite all efforts of political leaders to make a new stand against Nazi aggression, single-handedly if need be.

NEW BRITISH THREAT

Newton and Delacroix called upon Benes at Hradisch palace two hours before the Czech note of acceptance was finally presented. The new Anglo-French demarche constituted an outright demand that Czechoslovakia announce acceptance without further delay.

In effect, Britain and France said:

"If you do not comply, it will be necessary for us to consider Czechoslovakia the guilty party."

Still the cabinet wavered, not because its own mind had not been made up but because the leaders of the various political factions represented in the Czech parliament were pressing for any kind of action, no matter how suicidal, rather than surrender to Germany without a blow struck in defense of Czechoslovakia's territorial integrity.

FEAR OF REVOLT

Then, too, the fear of revolution has been present and growing.

But more moderate minds prevailed. The moment Newton and Delacroix were entrusted with the fateful missive of surrender, sealed for the last time with the seal of sovereign Czechoslovakia, Minister of Propaganda Vavrecka called in journalists and informed them officially of the decision.

"We were confronted with the task of saving the state or savings of the nation," he said. "We had no other alternative."

In other words, Prague at last realized that unless Germany got what she wanted in the Sudetenland, all of Czechoslovakia would be turned into a battleground of blood-drenched ashes.

Prague's hesitancy to comply with the Nazi demands was increased when word was received from Moscow that if Germany used the Sudeten legion "volunteers" against Czech soil, Russia would sent airplanes and "volunteers" in at least as great numbers as Germany supplied.

AVERTS BLOODY WAR

This would have meant transformation of Czechoslovakia into another Spain, with a bloody war, even though localized, fought within her boundaries, with suffering inevitable and extinction far from improbable.

Benes decided, therefore, that while he could not save his nation as constituted by the treaty of Versailles, he might at least save the Czechoslovak state. And upon this decision the cabinet rested, trusting its future to the guarantees promised by Great Britain and France.

The ultimate fate of Czechoslovakia remains in doubt.

Hungary and Poland have served notice they want ther share of the spoils and Prague has yet to learn just what will be left.

A revolt aimed at establishing a military dictatorship for the purpose of fighting Hitler was a last-minute danger feverishly discussed by the Cabinet.

HITLER MAY ATTACK

Jan Masaryk, Czech minister to London, telephoned to Prague shortly after the cabinet had reached its decision. He told them that British opinion was veering in favor of checking Hitler after all.

In the meantime Hitler may attack, but if he does so under these circumstances the Czechs are still hoping France and England will come to their aid. The Czechs now consider they can save their national existence only if Hitler does so attack.

Thus without firing a shot, Hitler has increased the population of the German empire by three and one-half million people.

He has also enlarged its territory by a new province and destroyed the last democracy in Central Europe.

In the spirit of profound bitterness which prevailed here today there is no limit to the forecasts of impending doom and the view is widespread that Hitler will not halt at the Sudeten territory but will occupy the whole country.

All Czechoslovakia's allies, notably France, deserted her except the Soviet Union. During the night the Soviet ambassador conveyed to the government assurance that the Soviet Union was ready to come and help even if France did not.

Moscow declared it was willing to act under the covenant of the League of Nations and defend a fellow-member against aggression.

Hitler Troops Speeded in Secret Move

BERLIN, Sept. 21 (AP)—A continuous stream of motor trucks rumbled through Berlin and eastern sections of Germany today, rushing troops to an undisclosed destination.

Germany apparently was getting ready for the final act in the Czech drama.

The movement in Berlin, where trucks requisitioned from commercial firms were used to carry soldiers, was typical of what was reported throughout Germany, especially in the eastern sections, including Austria, which surrounded Czechoslovakia's western end.

Chancellor Hitler hastened to Godesberg, where he is scheduled to assume the role of protector of Czechoslovakia's German, Hungarian and Polish minorities in a second meeting with Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain tomorrow.

Sudetens Raid Czech Customs

WEIS, Czechoslovakia (At the German Frontier), Sept. 21 (AP)—A night raiding force of the Sudeten German "Free Corps" early today attacked the Czechoslovak customs house at Weis, three miles from Eger, seriously wounding one Czechoslovak soldier.

At least one of the raiders was believed wounded. At daylight Czechoslovaks found one German rifle and some civilian hats at the scene of the raid. They said at least 35 of the "Free Corps" took part in the attack, in which some 25 shots were exchanged.

A detachment of 40 Czechoslovak soldiers armed with hand grenades arrived here two hours after the clash.

Pope Issues Plea For Peace Prayers

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Sept. 21 (AP)—Pope Pius XI, who chose the name for his Pontificate hoping it would be an era of peace, today asked all Catholic churches of Rome to devote an hour next Sunday to prayers for peace.

Blames U. S., Wilson, for Czech Plight

LONDON, Sept. 21 (INS)—London evening newspapers splashed news of the Czech cabinet's decision to capitulate to Germany with streamer headlines today, but warned their readers of "dangers ahead."

The Evening News and Standard defended Great Britain's intervention, characterizing the case of Czechoslovakia as a tragedy, but adding:

"The United States, through President Wilson, was much more responsible for it than Great Britain."

The Evening Star castigated Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain for "bowing the knee to dictators."

'Jobs for All,' Aids Hitler, Says Nazi Economist

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP)—Dr. George Seebauer, president of the German board of efficiency, told the international management congress today that assurance of work for "every able-bodied worker has created a most valuable feeling of economic security in Germany."

The Reich official discussing social and economic policies, said:

"We in Germany place great faith in the appeal we make to the good will and good sense of the employer and employe alike.

"It is the increasing readiness on the part of the employer to effect changes which assures us of ultimately leading to a permanent change of outlook of all employes concerning their social liabilities and in turn the success of our efforts.

"By adopting a constructive policy of providing and creating work we succeeded in enormously stimulating economics."

Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said that management should be more concerned with service to the public than with quick profits.

The solution to technological problems can be found only in better technical advancements and better management, he said.

Two U. S. Warships Arrive in Britain

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 21 (AP)—The United States light cruisers Nashville and Honolulu arrived unexpectedly today at Portsmouth.

The officers did not disclose how long the cruisers would stay here nor what their future movements would be. The Nashville previously was at Gravesend while the Honolulu came from the United States.

O'Connor Seeks Purge Recount

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—With the Republican Congressional nomination firmly in his grasp, Representative John J. O'Connor demanded a recount today of his apparent defeat by New Dealer James H. Fay for the Democratic renomination in the 16th district.

The veteran Democrat determined to carry his fight against President Roosevelt's "purge" to Supreme Court, justifying the proposed recount with charges of widespread fraud in the primary election.

Complete returns showed Fay defeated O'Connor for the Democratic nomination, 8,352 to 7, 799. O'Connor defeated Allen W. Dulles for the Republican nomination, 2,853 to 1,868.

If O'Connor is re-elected in November as a Republican, he would be deprived of the chairmanship of the powerful House rules committee, for he would lose his 13 years' seniority as a Democratic congressman.

At the Tammany Central Association, headquarters of Tammany Leader Michael J. Cruise of the 12th assembly district north, several hundred persons cheered O'Connor as he emerged.

"They tell me I won the Republican primary, which proves the majority of the people who voted wanted me back in Congress," he said.

"I predict the final result in the Democratic primary will show only a 300-400 vote difference.

"That means the election is so close it cannot be determined definitely now."

O'Connor's advisers charged the Democratic primary "reeked of fraud."

The primary was the 10th and final test of the Roosevelt "purge," the President having lost nine others in succession including those involving Senators George of Georgia and Tydings of Maryland.

M'Masters May Be Election Key

Significant in the election of a Governor in November will be William H. McMasters of Cambridge, in spite of the fact he ran second to Leverett Saltonstall in the Republican primary.

McMasters, whose party affiliations have ranged from Democrat, through the Union Party and now Republican, also took the gains last July to file as an independent candidate so his name could appear on the election ballot regardless of his primary fate.

Two years ago he polled 68,567 votes as a Union party candidate for governor. The vote McMasters polls on his Townsend platform might decide the winner.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, starchy or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew pearls—your stomach juices may not be strong enough. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes these little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick. It is amazing and one 25¢ package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

?? SWING or STRAIGHT ??

Rudy Het Up Over Jit-Jam

Rudy Vallee slipped into town and out again in a rush.

In his black glasses and low brimmed hat, he went virtually unnoticed as he swapped from automobile to plane on his journey from his Maine retreat to New York.

But Rudy who is to meet up with Benny Goodman in that much anticipated battle of music, "Swing versus Straight," at Boston Garden the night of Monday, Oct. 24, had plenty of time to enthuse over this most auspicious occasion.

"I mean it most sincerely when I say that I feel both honored and flattered that the Boston Evening American and Sunday Adviser invited me to play with Benny Goodman at the Christmas Basket Fund show.

WALTZES vs SWING

"This will be my first introduction to playing in a 'Battle of Music,' and I'm enjoying the prospect just as I am at squaring off against Benny for the first time.

"I promise to do my part in making the show a success. We'll be at our best and we'll have some delightful old waltzes to match against Benny's hot swing.

"It may surprise dance folks to know that I heartily enjoy listening to swing music as played by Benny Goodman.

"But while I like swing, I still don't understand just what it is. For all I know my own Connecticut Yankees may sometimes get in the groove without me realizing it.

"I suppose the normal conception of swing today is what might be called hot jazz.

STIFF CONTEST SEEN

"But for myself while I can enjoy hearing swing, I'll continue with straight playing, by which I mean taking the music as written and neither adding or putting a lift to it, but blending it."

With the great Rudy Vallee all het up about the classic music battle with Benny Goodman "King of Swing" and with the New England public daily becoming more enthusiastic over the Garden issue, the "Swing vs. Straight" competition should be easily the year's finest musical treat.

Tonight Joe Rubin, director of the "jitterbug" preliminary contests takes his judges to Club Mayfair, Boston, where Lew Bonick's swingsters are ready with their "Flat Foot Floosies," and the other "Jam" numbers which make maniacs out of the normally mild mannered dancer.

Tonight's Club Mayfair winning team, as well as those of other preliminary tryouts, will automatically qualify for the Garden finals for which Vallee and Goodman bands will provide the music. The winners of this grand finale will be awarded a full week's professional stage engagement.

Jitter Jam Prelims Lure Full Schedule

Jitterbug jam sessions are being held nightly. These are preliminaries to the smashing finals of Monday, October 24, at Boston Garden when Benny Goodman and Rudy Vallee will provide the music. This week's schedule follows:

Tonight—Club Mayfair, Boston, Lew Bonick and orchestra.

Tomorrow—Ricker Gardens Ballroom, Me., Roy Eldridge and band.

Friday — Roseland-State Ballroom, Boston, Roy Eldridge and band.

Saturday—R. I. Auditorium, Providence, Chick Webb's gang.

Saturday—Lake Pearl Park, Wrentham, Buddy Trask and orchestra.

(Jitterbugs may call Director Joe Rubin at DEV 8080 for further information.)

Get 'Swing' Ticket Now

Tickets are now on sale at the Boston Garden box office for the Benny Goodman-Rudy Vallee "Swing vs. Straight" battle of music scheduled for Monday, October 24th.

Plenty of the best seats are available. All entitle holders to dancing. Admission tickets are priced at $1, reserved seats at $1.65 and choice box seats at $2.20.

Pease do not apply for seats or send money to the Boston Evening American.

WEIGHS IN, then out. Rudy Vallee stops for a moment at South Station on way to New York after visit to Maine camp. He's getting in shape for Big Battle of Music with Benny Goodman at Basket Fund Jamboree at Boston Garden, Oct. 24. That will be the night of the finals of the Jitterbug contest sponsored by the Boston Evening American in its unique duel of "swing" versus "straight."

Tobin Silent On Curley Win

By PAUL WHELTON

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21—Dawn's long pink fingers had reached today into the Boston sky and had been diffused into full daylight before Mayor Maurice J. Tobin pulled Hotel Ambassador covers up and reposed himself in slumber.

It had been a full and trying day and night and early morning for Boston's "thin man," best-looking of all the municipal chief executives gathered here at the American Legion convention.

But despite the sizzling heat of the legion parade day a telephone barrage of invitations which no one could accept, and a reunion evening, the mayor stayed up with a suite-full of Bostonians, former Bostonians and Massachusetts legionnaires to learn how the state primaries back home had turned out.

Your correspondent informed him of the tabulations progress, the Curley victory on the Democratic side, but he declined to make any comment.

"That's a state fight, and the voters fight," he said, "and my principal business in hand here is to bring the 1940 legion convention to Boston."

In that he has all but succeeded. Nothing official can be done in the way of action until the 1939 convention, which is apparently set for Chicago, but all the talk now is Boston a year later.

This morning, 7:30 Los Angeles time, 11:30 Boston time—he was a speaker at the Los Angeles breakfast club.

Tonight the mayor is principal speaker at the "YD" club of Southern California reunion.

It is predicted that Commander Doherty will relinquish his gavel to Stephen F. Chadwick of Seattle, Washington.

Star to Hospital

International News Photograph Service

ONLY AN HOUR after Jeanette McDonald welcomed Mrs. Mae Cushman, above, to tea for Gold Star Mothers, the singing film star and beauty was ordered to Good Samaritan Hospital for a "secondary" ear operation.

Dies Organizes Peace League as Red Deterrent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (INS)—Declaring foreign influences in this nation must be curbed, Representative Martin Dies (D) of Texas, chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee announced establishment of a League for Peace and Americanism.

The Texan, whose committee has unearthed extensive evidence on Nazi, Fascist and Communist activities, said he would apply within a few days for a charter for the new organization and predicted its membership will soar to 5,000,000.

"Membership in the league," he said, "will be open to every American citizen who is sincerely devoted to the principles and ideals of the republic, regardless of the church in which he worships, the race to which he belongs, or his social or economic condition in life."

'Bossy' Gillis Trails in Vote

NEWBURYPORT, Sept. 21 — This town's peppery ex-mayor Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis appeared today to be running a poor fourth in the contest for representative early returns indicated.

Leading the field was Henry M. Duggan, chairman of the G. O. P. city committee. Next in line were Democratic nominee William F. Bartlett and Representative Harland Burke of Byfield.

'Mother' Loses Doorstep Baby

WOONSOCKET, Sept. 21 — A mother's love is not enough.

The fine unfathomable passion that has lived in the heart of every woman since Eve, is not sufficient to create the happiness of a child, the state welfare law proved here today.

An [illegible]-year-old mother sobbed in Probate Court here before Judge Walter H. Sharkey and bared the hidden secret of her [illegible] child birth in an effort to assure that baby's adoption by a foster mother, but [illegible]

Judge Sharkey ruled that Mrs. [illegible] Woonsocket, [illegible] the baby [illegible] but that under the law he must [illegible] the mother [illegible] to find a good home for [illegible]

French in New Plea to Czechs

PARIS, Sept. 21 (INS) Appalled by Czechoslovakia's delay in announcing her acceptance of the Anglo-French partition proposal, the French government made a new demarche (step toward action) in Prague today stressing the suicidal danger of further resistance.

Meanwhile, dissension mounted over the government's stand.

Eyston's Car Damaged, Trials End

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Sept. 21 (AP) Capt. George E. T. Eyston abandoned further attempts this year to raise his car and speed record of 357 miles per hour after his giant racer, Thunderbolt, was damaged today in a careening five-mile run.

The crowning (on the two right rear) wheels of the car soared as the machine lurched through the measured mile at 345.85 miles per hour, sailing on the back curve of the metal shell like a bobsled. Eyston said he would return to England on the Queen Mary October 2.

Eyston's departure from the field ended the 1938 high speed racing season.

I have seen "Four Daughters"

★ For the first time in thirty-three years of motion picture production, I am taking this means of reaching the public. My business is making pictures, not advertising them. Only something remarkable, something truly unique, would lead me so far afield.

★ Tomorrow, at the Metropolitan Theatre, a new motion picture will be shown to the public for the first time. That picture is "FOUR DAUGHTERS"—a picture destined to fulfill every promise the motion picture industry has ever made to the public; a picture that in its humanity and greatness will prove forever unforgettable.

★ "FOUR DAUGHTERS" sprang from the brain of warm-hearted, great-souled FANNIE HURST, whose "Back Street" and "Imitation of Life" stand among screenland's milestones. To this, her greatest novel, the screen has given vivid stature that cold type could never capture, a thrilling sincerity seldom experienced.

★ "FOUR DAUGHTERS" brings to the screen, in addition to a cast of seasoned excellence, three young players—Priscilla Lane, John Garfield and Jeffrey Lynn. We believe that you, after seeing them, will make them stars by your acclaim. Miss Lane's rise has been quick; her brilliance in this picture is unquestionable. John Garfield, already known to theatre-goers, wins rank with Hollywood's topmost stars by virtue of a truly magnificent performance. The personality and romantic glamor of Jeffrey Lynn insures for him, to my mind, a future equally lustrous.

★ Every person, without exception, who has seen this picture at previews, has taken it straight to his heart. Its inspired performances, its soul-stirring beauty, its heart-warming simplicity all stamp it with the hallmark of true greatness. Proud as I was of "Pasteur", "Anthony Adverse", "Zola" and "Robin Hood" in their day, I am prouder, I believe, of "FOUR DAUGHTERS".

★ To me, it is the climax of a career. To Miss Lane, Mr. Garfield and Mr. Lynn, it is the beginning of a glorious new one. To you, it is a picture that should be seen, must be seen, will be seen by every man, woman and child in this great city.

With all sincerity,

JACK L. WARNER, Vice-President

MRS. FOLEY TO WAGE FIGHT

JOHN F. DOWD

Dowd Victor Over Keliher

City Councilor John F. Dowd of Roxbury scored a sweeping victory over the late Sheriff John A. Keliher in the contest for the Democratic nomination for sheriff of Suffolk County.

Sheriff Keliher, who died suddenly of a heart attack at his home in Dorchester early yesterday morning, had conceded defeat in the contest when he telephoned Dowd congratulating him on his victory. Dowd's lead in the final returns was considered so decisive as to be virtually the equivalent of 10,000 votes.

Dowd has been a member of the Boston City Council since 1929. Prior to that time he served as a secretary to former Governor James M. Curley, as his executive and executive secretary.

Only slight opposition was offered to Dowd, particularly in the city, particularly in the Ward 8 district of Roxbury, and Dowd carried Dorchester.

The vote in 21 of the 22 wards and precincts was Dowd 19,000, Keliher 14,000. In the remaining ward, Ward 22, Dowd received 1,200 votes and Keliher 1,100.

DR. HART ELECTED

DOVER, Sept. 20 (AP)—Dr. Charles H. Hart, Democrat, of Newton, defeated Wendell P. Rollins, Republican, of Dover, for the office of district attorney of Norfolk county in the primary election today.

Dr. Hart received 1,200 votes to Rollins' 1,000.

Friends and supporters of Sheriff Keliher had remarked more than [illegible] the fact that neither his failing health nor the loss of the Democratic nomination could prevent his reelection to the Suffolk county post he had held so long and ably.

Sheriff Keliher was born at Lower Mills, attended Edmund Setter [illegible] Roxbury high school.

After serving in the Legislature [illegible] he resigned from the State [illegible] to was elected to Congress from the [illegible] Massachusetts district.

He served [illegible] Congress [illegible] was appointed [illegible] Curtis to the post of Suffolk county sheriff [illegible]

At a [illegible] which he died were his wife, Mrs. Louise Keliher, his father, Hiram, and two sisters, Nellie and Josephine.

WHAT OPPONENT SAYS

On receiving of Sheriff Keliher's death, former City Councilor John A. Dowd, said of same as he put it, to it.

"The death of John A. Keliher, while not a surprise to me, still came as a great shock," he said.

"I deliberately refrained from speaking one word of criticism of the sheriff, even though I realized those who sponsored his candidacy would seize on the fact and proclaim me destitute of any issue.

"I would rather have failed of nomination than to have attempted to profit by attacking the record of so grand an old warrior as John A. Keliher.

Governor Saltonstall sent the following telegram to Mrs. Jere A. Quirk:

"In all the news I have received today, the saddest is of the death of Sheriff Keliher. May I extend my deepest sympathy to you in your bereavement."

Love Racket Foe in Race With Cook

Recent victor in a four-year, uphill fight to outlaw the "love racket" in Massachusetts, Representative Katherine A. Foley of Lawrence wasn't scared a bit today by the prospect of being November election opponent of "unbeatable" Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook.

and 3 to 1 over Democratic Governor Ely.

RACE SEE-SAW

Until the Boston count was started, however, the race between Curley and Hurley was so see-saw that no one dared to predict the outcome.

In the Democratic fight for lieutenant governor James H. Brennan and Joseph C White, both of Jamaica Plain, were in a tight race with Governor's Councillor Edward L. Collins of Springfield running third, with returns not yet complete.

House Speaker Horace T. Cahill of Braintree won the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

In 1761 precincts out of 1762 in the state Cahill had polled 113,040 to 81,733 recorded for Charles P. Howard, former chairman of the state commission on administration and finance, and 93,109 given former Judge Kenneth Johnson of Milton.

State Treasurer William F. Hurley had a commanding lead over Alvan T. Fuller for the Republican renomination, while Joseph W. Doherty of Brookline and Owen Gallagher of Roxbury fought nip and tuck for the Democratic nomination.

BUCKLEY AHEAD

In the Democratic contest for state auditor a 5 to 1 vote was cast for State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley over Leo D. Walsh of South Boston and John J. Barry of Everett. Russell Wood of Cambridge maintained a healthy lead throughout over Carl Goodwin of Boston in the Republican race.

Democratic Attorney General Paul A. Dever had no contest. He will be faced at election, however, by Clarence A. Barnes of Marshfield at the November election, according to the latest returns of partial returns which showed him leading Howe Coolidge Ames of Cambridge and Frank F. Walters of Boston by a substantial margin.

Miss Katherine Foley of Lawrence, who sponsored the law which bars beer and wine sales in this state, won in the Democratic race for secretary of state.

In 1761 precincts out of 1762 in the state Mrs. Foley polled 119,016 votes, William F. Sullivan of Boston was second with 107,982. Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Although tabulation of contests for both branches of the Legislature proceeded slowly, it appeared that both House and Senate will remain Republican by a substantial margin.

OLSEN BEATEN

The last present member of the House to go down to defeat was Representative Otto Olsen of Pepperell, a Republican, who lost to Fred Carpenter of Groton in the 12th Middlesex district, where Republican nomination is equivalent to election.

Tabulation of the first 20 House members showed 17 Republicans and three Democrats renominated. The revelation was heartening to others who had feared that the recent legislative writing over unemployment relief funds might have hurt their chances for another term.

The same approval of present incumbents was apparent in early returns from the congressional districts. Congressman Charles L. Gifford of Barnstable defeated two opponents in the 14th district, where Republican nomination is considered as good as election.

Congressman Allen T. Treadway of Stockbridge won an easy victory in the first district over James H. Whittemore of Westfield. His Republican nomination also is considered equivalent to election.

CASEY LOSES G. O. P.

Congressman Joseph E. Casey of Clinton, who was unopposed for Democratic renomination, lost out on his quest for Republican nomination, which he also sought to insure himself of no contest in November.

J. Walton Tuttle, of Framingham, was named nominee by the Republicans and will face Congressman Casey at election time.

Tuttle, although blind, is a practising attorney and a veteran member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

Curley Thanks

Victory Message

Message of thanks to the Democratic voters of Massachusetts from former Governor James M. Curley through the Boston Evening American:

"Through the Boston Evening American I wish personally to extend my sincere thanks and appreciation to the loyal Democratic voters of Massachusetts who chose to nominate me as their gubernatorial candidate in the coming November election.

"I am grateful to all those who contributed to the success of my primary campaign and trust that their support will be in evidence November 8th.

"The Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser receive my deepest appreciation for the splendid manner in which they treated my campaign through their news and editorial columns.

"It was the Boston Sunday Advertiser which first revealed the news to the reading public of Massachusetts, through their honest and accurate straw ballot, that James M. Curley would be nominated.

"I hold a kindly feeling for my opponents and hope that the Democratic Party in Massachusetts will be united in November and insure another Democratic victory in this Commonwealth."

Campaign Duties Over:

Curley's Wife Looks to Home

By MARJORIE McBRIDE

Mrs. James Michael Curley likes politics. Just so long as her husband was battling for the governor's nomination she was standing by his side.

Now it's over, she's a housewife in her heart.

When the tumult had died away at dawn today, proclaiming Curley the Democrats' choice, Mrs. Curley drew one long sigh and began to plan for the months ahead.

"I knew all along he'd win," she said confidently at their Jamaicaway home. "How could a man, so interested in the welfare of the Commonwealth, fail to win? He's put so much of his life into this campaign. If he'd lost, it simply wouldn't have made sense.

"The word 'lost' of course isn't in the Curley vocabulary."

She's proud of him and for him and she has too much humor to pretend she is anything but overjoyed at his success.

"We're not surprised," she kept repeating, "I knew Jim would win out all the time I had a hunch."

DRESSED IN BLACK

Mrs. Curley was dressed in black crepe with sleeves embroidered in colored beads. She wore a silver fox cape and her hair was combed in a conservative version of the new upswing style.

During the cupful of coffee at the Curley home, Mrs. Edward Donnelly, the ex-governor's daughter, and her husband, and Mrs. Curley's sister, Mary Agnes, who has been her father through many campaigns, was proudly elated.

"This is a victory we've all anticipated and all worked for," she said. "We are so grateful for the nomination."

The reception was a climax to a triumphant ride through downtown Boston. Mrs. Curley accompanied her husband and Mrs. and Mrs. Donnelly with the driver at the head of the long parade.

From wife of candidate to wife of the governor-elect of Massachusetts isn't a difficult step. Mrs. Curley discusses the next 2 years with candor. She thinks James Michael has a big job more worries of campaigning ahead of him but that he is equal to it.

"So many people ask me if it hasn't been a strenuous campaign. It has, and yet not once did it occur to me that the result would be different than it is," she said.

TALENTED MUSICIAN

Besides her interest in politics Mrs. Curley is a talented musician and as such has done a bit of pinch-hitting at the piano while James Michael was campaigning.

Sometimes she was called on to make a speech, but

"I'm not much good at speaking," she said.

Mrs. Curley finds her life full enough with being mistress of the big mansion at Jamicaway with her two sons and the youngest, Curley boy, Francis, without indulging in political battles.

Curley's Win Is Rare Saga

This is the first of several articles on the amazing comeback triumph of James M. Curley.

By JOHN GAVIN

Twice they've buried James M. Curley, with Democratic flags at half staff, and gleeful Republicans firing salvos across his political grave.

The man won't stay buried.

He keeps reappearing, and here again a specter has political foes which they could banish with

"Begone, ye ghost."

In the long and lurid history of Massachusetts politics, no man ever made a more dramatic comeback.

Use what metaphor you will.

Say he was standing in the shadow of his own goalpost, with only a few years to go. That there were [illegible] on him. That he [illegible] was the end.

However you frame it, Curley's back in the picture after the most rousing brawl of his political career.

OVERCOME "HABIT"

He has even proved he can overcome the habit of defeat for he has been beaten in his last two races by younger men.

In yesterday's flaming triumph he humbled the party, but youngish Governor Charles F. Hurley and the younger and more fiery Senator Francis E. Kelly.

Hurley tried to ignore him. Kelly tried to smack him around like a naughty grandpappy.

But the merry laughter today was at the Curley outs in a big way.

The question now is how he'll do it. He swings the Democrats and the Democrats of the Bay State have no use for they don't like at all.

Today is the happiest day of his life, he told the Boston Evening American.

He feels he has been vindicated after humiliating defeats at the hands of brewery king Henry Cabot Lodge and of your own Looking young Mr. [illegible] Jr.

He said:

"I'll beat Saltonstall. But what ever happens, this is a great day. I feel the people need me up there on the hill and I'm ready to march."

CONTRARY NATION

[illegible] Curley [illegible] the people to [illegible] Washington [illegible] Boston in the primary [illegible] H. Cox, backed by Senator Walsh and departing Governor Ely, got 38,895. Frank A. Goodwin, candidate by [illegible] got 7,43[illegible].

Curley was at the peak of his power. He beat Ely easily. In the primary of 1930, among the [illegible] in the state, Curley got 87,[illegible] for Lieut. Gov. Wood and 12,911 for Thomas H. [illegible] Jr. before [illegible] on a [illegible].

Yesterday, Hurley, [illegible] Lodge [illegible] a [illegible] and Kelly [illegible] Curley [illegible] Washington.

In the [illegible] election of 1932 [illegible] in Massachusetts [illegible] Curley [illegible] in Democratic Boston and [illegible] Republican Lodge [illegible] and Ely [illegible] in that order.

In yesterday's primary the personality-packed [illegible] Democratic leader got the biggest [illegible] in the state's history.

Democratic [illegible] have [illegible] the people of the state [illegible].

NOT TO BE BUDGED!

The Editor Says:—America is being exhorted by "interested" groups to unite with alien powers to preserve "peace and democracy" in Europe.

Our duty is to preserve peace and democracy IN AMERICA.

It is the will of the overwhelming majority of the American people that this country STAY OUT of foreign wars and controversies.

It is also their will that this country STAY OUT of foreign entanglements which would surely lead us into war and DESTROY "peace and democracy" everywhere.

THE CURLEY VICTORY in the Democratic primary was expected by thousands. The Boston Sunday Advertiser straw vote poll indicated the Boston strength of the former governor.

Even less a surprise was the Republican nomination of former Speaker of the House Leverett Saltonstall.

The campaign just ended, especially the Democratic, was bitter. All candidates struck out vigorously at other contestants. There were charges and counter-charges, half truths, misstatements and deliberate falsehoods. Consequently, scars are bound to result.

But, and fortunately for the nominees, the political memory is short. Party loyalty is powerful in Massachusetts.

The days between now and the November election will be a period of never-before-paralleled activity among both Republicans and Democrats. Both will do their utmost to attract that large group of independent voters who do not participate in primaries.

This group—and it numbers thousands—will probably decide who is to be Massachusetts next governor.

WE ARE PROUD of the drill team of Newton Post No. 18, winners in the competition at the Los Angeles national convention of the American Legion.

Though thousands of miles separate them from us, we shall rejoice as these former soldiers carry the colors in the huge parade of Legionnaires from all the forty-eight States.

We are pleased too with the many sincere and warm tributes paid Commander Daniel J. Doherty of Woburn, who is retiring after a year of excellent service and leadership.

Our job will be easy as the Legion accepting Mayor Tobin's invitation to make Boston its national convention city two years hence.

PAULINE FREDERICK, dead at 55 in Beverly Hills, Calif., was an outstanding Bostonian and a great actress.

She will be remembered for her notable performances on the stage and screen in such plays as "Zaza," "Madame X," "Resurrection" and "On Trial."

We particularly like Miss Frederick's philosophy when, during her later career, she rejected many of the dramas in which she appeared.

We thought she expressed the view of millions when she said:

"I don't like plays about sordid or objectionable people, no matter how well they are written. When I go to the theater I want to be entertained and a little bit exalted. I do not want to be shocked or depressed."

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS loudly for thousands of Massachusetts men and women. All who can possibly afford the trivial small expense should listen.

We refer to the more than three hundred courses offered by the University Extension Classes, generously supported and encouraged by Commissioner of Education James G. Reardon.

There is a wide range of subjects—literature, languages, art, public speaking, history, geography, economics, sociology, law, even dancing and machinery building.

Everyone, regardless of his age and previous education, is sure to find a study suited to his tastes and talents.

The Human Side of the News

New Fiction Irks Pedagogs

By EDWIN C. HILL

A NEW YORK publisher just returning from England reports that good literature is waning there and that the public taste is running to third-rate melodrama and preposterous and wild-eyed fiction.

Taste are few journals of sound literary criticism and many signs of lowering standards of public taste, according to this traveler. He found many cultured Englishmen alarmed by the corruption of the language, partly by "Americanisms," and partly by its own inner deterioration, marked by vulgar colloquialisms and dubious syntax even in the supposed arcana of good writing.

Personally, I feel inclined to discount a lot of this. I remember when we were running to quantity output of books and magazines in the immediate pre-war years: the pedagogs were scolding and complaining a lot about the cheapening of our language and the undermining of all sound literary standards.

Some harmless best-seller, I forget the name now, drew a most intemperate attack from one of the Harvard Lits.

THE READING and discriminating appraisal of books always has been somewhat of an esoteric business. The cultural hierarchy hasn't liked the idea of letting the rest of us in. But here we are, and I don't think we are doing so badly—either those who write or those who read.

Just for fun, I flickered through one or two of Marie Corelli's novels, which were bell-ringers around 30 years ago. Some of her purple passages would make your hair curl. Take, for contrast, Margaret Mitchell's "Gone with the Wind," just to cite a book well in the domain of "public taste" of today.

Compared with those be-spangled and be-gauded outbreaks of yesterday, it is sober, concise, skilled, adult writing. And one could fill this newspaper with such comparisons.

Of course, there is a lot of tripe now being written and published, but I have an idea our total writing output assays less pure dross to the ton than it ever has before—barring, of course, that miracleage of "the flowering of New England." But that had little to do with mass literature as we view it here.

AUTHOR MARGARET MITCHELL
Her Best-Seller Fails to Curl Hair

MASS LITERATURE is, of course, something new under the sun, Ecclesiastes notwithstanding. Therefore the trend of public taste in reading matter may be revealing in its bearing on mass psychology.

A friend of mine, a psychologist, advanced the theory the other day that these literary trends are a reflex of social pressures, or the lack of them. He said it seemed quite plausible to him that, with the present tension in Europe, multitudes of readers should turn to cheap fiction, melodrama and the unfailing happy ending, as "overcompensation" for the more and more inexorable pressures and threats of life around them.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

THE SPY scare never scares us. Because the spies are always beautiful. And that's nothing to get scared about.

OF COURSE, when speaking of lady snoopers, they always refer to Mata Hari and other heroines who died for their best paying countries. Those girls merely made a mistake of spying when it was in earnest.

GENERALS aren't silly and admirals didn't get their jobs just because they spent their youth picking feathers off door-knobs. Say, we got a good idea to make snooping easy for spies and Broadway columnists. It's a double keyhole so all the strain won't be on one eye. America doesn't get very excited about spies because it's against our policy to keep secrets from the newsreels.

SOME DAY a foreign nation will get smart and send over a lady spy with a face that would make a vulture back off from a dead mule. Our boys will be so astonished they will give her every secret except how to keep tomato seeds out of your bridgework.

PASTE THIS on your windshield. In all history of cooperative imbroglios there has never been a war won on information furnished by a spy, beautiful or just medium.

The Brighter Side

Herring to Tickle British Palates

By DAMON RUNYON

AS AN OLD time herring man, we take satisfaction in a dispatch from London to the effect that the first of a chain of herring bars is soon to open in that city.

It will offer this noble fish in all its many edible forms. It will present fresh herring, salt herring, pickled herring, baconed herring, grilled, stuffed, poached and deviled herring, and of course red herring, unless, as we fear, it has all been used up by the diplomats lately for drawing across diplomatic trails.

We feel much more kindly toward the English people since reading this news. We did not realize that they are a people of such keen appreciation of the better things of life. We knew that they went in for rare roast beef, old abbeys, fog, ale, plum pudding, colonies, and a curious accent, but little did we think that 'neath their national phlegm lies a beautiful sense of the artistic.

A nation that shows a disposition to place the herring in convenient reach of all its citizens cannot be anything but fundamentally sound. Our only regret is that this country did not think of the herring bars first, but we presume all the available locations are taken up by the fruit juice and hamburger stands, so we will have to continue taking our herring where we find it.

IN THE INVENTORY of what is to happen at the English herring bar, we come upon what seem to be a couple of jarring notes. For instance, there is that poached herring. It almost got us in serious trouble with the chef at Lindy's restaurant, one of the famous herring haunts of the Broadway region.

We had never heard of poached herring and we thought it must be something new, so we casually ordered one of the waiter the other night. We remembered afterwards that he gave us a peculiar glance as he inquired:

"Didn't you say poached herring?"

We said that is what we said, all right.

"Herring you said — not eggs?" he persisted.

"Herring," we repeated. "Poached herring."

THE waiter departed, muttering under his breath and was gone quite a while and when he returned the chef was with him and the chef had his hands under his apron and we thought we detected the outlines of a cutlass.

"This man," said the chef, glaring accusingly at the waiter, "says you want me to poach a herring."

"That's right," we said. "Poach it."

The chef eyed us for some time in silence, his hands twitching under his apron and then he said:

"Herrings are Bismarck. Herrings are Marinierte. Sometimes herrings are matjes or tomato. Sometimes they are my special. That's with mustard sauce. Never are herrings poached. Kindly leave before I lose my temper."

We hope the incident does not get bruited about to any extent as it might hurt our standing with the other herring men of the community.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE COMPLAI[illegible] a lot of it

No, it isn't complaint

Or [illegible] Heaven knows she has no reason to feel sorry for herself. Health and happiness, wealth and fame.

You can't blame her, really, for being tired of [illegible] Forever on the [illegible] A Forever on the [illegible] Forever on the [illegible] Or [illegible] I ever [illegible] anywhere or know that I'll be [illegible] No, no, no! I have NOT.

What's more, I'm convinced that the essential value of Consistency is overstated and an insult to [illegible] The [illegible] who [illegible] just [illegible] Consistency didn't pay.

Consistency is a Stubborn Politician. There is all the same. For the same rule works with man or beast. CONSISTENCY IS ALWAYS AN OREGON BOOT ON LIFE. It has blocked progress, penalized courage, and put the Intrepid and Adventurous in stocks since the human pets ran [illegible]

• • •

IT IS NOT possible for a really Consistent person to be wise or free merry or kind. For Consistency implies that you adopt one line of thought and stick by it through hell or highwater.

BUT HOW, I ASK YOU, CAN YOU EXPECT TO PROFIT BY CONSISTENCY IF YOU'RE JUST A DUMB, HALF-BAKED HUMAN BEING WHO DOESN'T KNOW THE ANSWERS BUT IS BARIN' TO GO!

The answer is you don't profit. Not at least, in any way that would appeal to a regular, red-blooded human. Nor has any Consistent Person, whom I have ever met, desired such profit. PROTECTION NOT PROGRESS is their aim. They simply wish to STAY PUT, without risking censure or ridicule.

In other words, they wish to coddle their laziness, stubbornness, stupidity, cowardice and conceit; yet, at the same time, save their faces. And Consistency supplies them with the swellest blanket alibi on earth.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON — a gentle sage on most subjects — gets downright tough on this particular topic. Listen.

With Consistency a great soul has simply nothing to do. He may as well concern himself with his shadow on the wall.

His shadow on the wall"—words could paint no plainer picture of a Consistent man's life. Study him for one day and you know him forever. Man's material environment may change utterly. Science may push evolution 500 years ahead by one discovery. And human nature, faced with such alterations, may be forced to make appalling adjustment . . . may need to go upon reckless adventures lead hazardous crusades.

But with all this, the Consistent Man has nothing to do. His plan is made; his course is set. For ever and forevermore, he has nothing to do but STAY PUT.

Of all the blights in an insane world, the Stay-Putters are the champions! Right now we are witnessing endless evidence of this fact.

Consistent? No, Lady, I'm not. And that's why.

HOSTESS PEGGY BOWIE MAKES MOTORING A PLEASURE
Weymouth High Girl Builds Career on Gasoline Station

Girl About Town by Marguerite Downey

CHECK UP another for youth's ingenuity. Being a gasoline station hostess is the latest occupational fad.

But Peggy Bowie, a recent graduate of Weymouth High School, scarcely looks upon it as such. She's a career woman. And few since she's [illegible] upped 25 per cent since her arrival and receipts are giving her brother a remodelled station. Peggy's convinced that she has a future in the business.

Greasing cars and changing flats aren't included in the 19-year-old blonde's line of duties. But she does wash windshields, fill radiators and distribute road maps and guest stickers. She admires babies and her smile must be refreshing to many a tired, weary motorist.

Matrimonially speaking the Somerville gasoline station is a good spot. To date she's had three proposals and numerous opportunities. But leave it to your big brother who's also your boss to nip such romances in the bud.

Yet you will have to grant that after greeting 25,000 motorists in the last three months and washing [illegible] as many windshields she certainly has an [illegible] ability.

• • •

POOR ROMANCE! It encounters many handicaps in the regimented lives of State Trooper recruits. Pictures of girls are absolutely taboo. Days are so full of drills, supervised recreation and law instructions that it often requires 72 hours to complete a one-page letter. Learning to ride a bike is simple compared with trying to hold your girl under such conditions.

There's a variety of types among the [illegible] to [illegible] between two red heads and two wide [illegible].

They all love the work, although it does mean reveille at six, bed at ten and spending all one's spare time scouring rifles and cleaning boots.

IT'S STRANGE how frequently an [illegible] can inspire an [illegible] who reads a wide [illegible] tragic events.

The other day a diary was sold at Goodspeed's Book Shop. It brought $200. The incident revived popular interest in one of the most baffling mysteries, the Boak case.

Forty-two years ago a lumber-laden schooner sailed out of Boston for Buenos Aires. Eleven men and one woman were aboard. The eleventh man was a Harvard student, Lester Monks. Two weeks later the schooner hove into Halifax harbor dragging a canvas-covered tow, in which were the mutilated bodies of the captain, his wife and first mate. Part of the story was pieced together and [illegible] Boak, was convicted. Lester he was pardoned by President Taft.

Throughout the fantastic voyage young Monks had kept a daily record of events, including an account of the murder scene, the ensuing mutiny and finally the welcome peace of the harbor.

Yet I cannot fancy myself spending $200 for a diary not even for one containing an on-the-scene story of one of the most amazing crimes in contemporary history.

China Hails American Globe-Girdling Fliers

CHAPTER 50

There was real excitement heading our way. Shanghai was preparing to receive the United States Army fliers engaged in what was to be known in history as the first successful 'round-the-world flight.

Their advent in Shanghai was particularly important, for their safe landing there would mark the first successful trans-Pacific flight from the American mainland to Asiatic continent.

There had been danger and mishaps aplenty thus far. Shanghai was breathless with anticipation and when the news came that the air squadron was over the China Sea, the city closed up shop.

A bunch of us, reporters, correspondents, officials, went down the river six miles to the landing ground; and almost all of the foreign population followed in houseboats, launches, tenders and junks.

The river banks on either side were lined for miles with crowds of gaping Chinese staring skyward. River police patrolled the landing course for some distance, and the entire traffic of the port was held up for more than two hours awaiting the arrival of the Americans.

Finally the planes appeared, tiny specks as they were sighted 20 miles distant over the mouth of the Yangtze. They followed the coast up to the landing buoys in front of headquarters of the Standard Oil Company, circled over the course and came to perfect landings. There were only two planes, piloted by Lieutenant Leigh Wade and Lieutenant Erik Nelson.

Shrieks, whistles, firecrackers, fire crackers, horns and sirens split the air as Wade and Nelson were carried on the shoulders of Captain Eaker of the shipping board, General Gutierrez, Lint and the American welcoming party.

"Best weather we've had since coming," Major Nelson said, and he has, no matter how terrific the storms they had been subject to, flit unerringly straight across the China sea from Japan to Shanghai, 385 miles.

NEW RECORD SET

Though the exciting time is said for two days with Nelson, Wade and Lieut. Lowell Smith, Lieut. H. Stuart Hotchkiss and Lieut. Harold Harding, Shanghai did nothing but celebrate.

Last night I was taken by the consul and entertained at the Cathay hotel, where Lint has been staying since his arrival. Tonight we are to be the guests of the Shanghai Country club, and tomorrow the fliers will be taken to Nanking, capital of China, by airplane.

"Other men will fly around the earth, but never again will anyone fly around for the first time."

That was the tribute which Admiral Richmond of the United States Navy paid the Army fliers on September 28, 1924 when they landed on Sand Point Field, Seattle, Washington, completing a nine months' record of world flight.

Only four planes had tipped off from Seattle. The fifth plane, ship in the end to Chicago for repairs and New Orleans followed Major Frederick L. Martin was flight commander. He and Lieut. Clarence Stiff were lost over Alaska. Lieut. Harry Ritchel in the Aleutians between Dutch Harbor and Chignik. A broken oil line forced Leigh Wade and Henry Ogden down in the North Atlantic and put the Boston out of the flight. They finished in a reserve plane, the Boston II.

But only Lowell Smith and Lee Arnold in the Chicago, and Erik Nelson and Jack Harding, in the New Orleans, swept across the finish line secure in the knowledge they had flown all around the world and made aviation history by doing it first, in 176 days of elapsed time, through icy Arctic cold and blizzards, tropic heat and hurricanes.

AERIAL STOWAWAY

We were reminiscing over that flight one night in New York myself, Lee Arnold and Linton Wells, famous correspondent with globe-girdling the fastest mileage record of all correspondents.

Linton still enjoys the doubtful distinction of being known as the world's first aerial stowaway. Although he recently explained all in his book "Blood on the Moon," Lint will never be able to live down the stowaway reputation he won when he took Leigh Wade at the airport, as the press hastily put it, "stowed away" aboard the New Orleans at Calcutta and flew across India with them.

I owe it all to the imaginative powers of that Reuter correspondent in Ahmedabad, Lint said.

He got as far as Karachi, where he was thrown out reluctantly – the local d.h. want him to leave – on peremptory orders from General Mason Patrick, chief of the Army Air Service, who read about him in the papers.

In addition to missing the rest of the flight, which he might have made so far as the fliers themselves were concerned, he lost his job in Tokyo for he had disobeyed orders to return from Calcutta in order to take the chances on the bigger adventure with the fliers.

Lint saw them again on March 1 when they roared in on September 8th, but he wasn't at the finish line in Seattle and he's always regretted it. He'd like to be somewhere at once in the world when a stowaway is interesting as hap pening. Maybe he – successful.

KLAN IN CHINA

Meantime while the fliers were circling around the world at what we knew seemed as an aerial snail's pace of 55 miles an hour, life in Shanghai for us at home and in the office grew more and more complicated.

[illegible] a new kind of fra[illegible] to impress our bosses with my initiative and industry.

My interest in [illegible] on the expeditions to gather material for these was one of Shanghai's most dreaded [illegible] Yard there [illegible] of the decades in China and speaking Mandarin, and the [illegible] of the country like a native. Pat Givens became my firm friend. He accepted me and it became his habit to do a bit of inspecting with him [illegible] once a week.

Expert and experienced as Pat and these criminal intelligence division men were, however, they were frequently defeated in their efforts to catch red handed a seller of opium in the International Settlement.

They'd get a tip and by the time the raiding squad reached the place we'd entered the shop of the Chinese looming before it and through the curtains at the rear found the proprietor of the shop just as he variously [illegible] the secret smoking room, as empty as a last [illegible] had all evaporated into thin air.

Yet smokers [illegible] there pay at higher [illegible] the unfortunates of [illegible] dozen. Opium, or [illegible] never [illegible] the [illegible] there [illegible] Purgatory [illegible].

The C. I. I. never despaired however. They accepted defeat cheerfully [illegible] knew China and the Chinese better or after they'd [illegible] they were after. Eventually they would.

The tip-off for the Chinese [illegible] was always what defeated. They acted fast and acted after word got out. [illegible] for a raid which [illegible] for days [illegible] and [illegible] knowledge.

One [illegible] tentative example of Chinese [illegible] work occurred in August when the Chinese Ku Klux Klan made its [illegible] debut even as it breathed its last.

A police raid on supposed Klan headquarters, seizure of [illegible] equipment and [illegible] some of the still unpublished first issue of The Kuo Sung, and the arrest of several [illegible] Klan leaders put the question on a movement which had been growing surreptitiously for three months.

At the time of the raid it was disclosed from card indexes of names that the Klan had a membership of more than 40,000. The week's showing witnessed hasty but determined renunciation by supposed members.

"CHINA FOR CHINESE"

The first hint of the existence in China of a Klan organization came in a story published in a Shanghai newspaper in May by an enterprising reporter who dug it up and kept it very much to himself and away from all the rest of us.

Next day the paper received and published a letter signed by the Supreme Klan warning against further investigation and setting forth the claim that the Klan was already powerful in Shanghai. "Its chief purpose," the Supreme Klan wrote, "is to reclaim China for the Chinese."

The foreign colony treated the story and the letter as an invention on the part of the reporter, and the truth to tell, when the rest of us uncovered nothing, we accepted this view as a convenient excuse for our own lack of enterprise.

But the reporter persisted and [illegible] him to a fetid-[illegible] house in Chinese territory where he was certain was Klan headquarters. [illegible] the adjoining house and [illegible] Pat [illegible] with the result [illegible] that that worthy's suspicions were [illegible]. He [illegible] a key which unlocked Klan headquarters. The reporter went in. He saw enough to convince him [illegible] stairs would stand up.

He published the articles of faith of the Klan which he had found, and pointed out that the organization seemed to be attracting hundreds of new members daily from among the more than 100,000 Chinese students of Shanghai at an initiation fee of $1 Mex and monthly dues of fifty cents.

Despite the [illegible] Yangtze [illegible] of the Spring and Woo [illegible] any and the official [illegible] for [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Ford Plan to Decentralize Is Revealed

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1938)

WASHIN[illegible]

SMALL VILLAGES

"Today there are 12 small village Ford hydro-electric plants employing anywhere from 25 to 60 men, in operation along the Rouge the Huron, the Raisin and other small southeastern Michigan rivers and streams with 10 more in prospect," he continued.

Strictly speaking, the Ford decentralization therefore embraces 22 little plants with an approximate total of 600 employes which of course will be considerably increased as soon as other parts of Dagenhills and adjacent areas be detached from the great central body at the Rouge."

CHIEF BENEFITS

"The chief benefits of this decentralization," Cameron added apart from its wider civic and national implications, are that it gives the employe and his family the advantages of rural life with city in one and the compensations better and happier working and, therefore, less labor turnover and a better quality of workmanship.

Complete decentralization is not to be expected. The heavier and final operations in manufacture must remain centralized. Foundries and large units must remain intact, but the contributory departments of big industry offer a large and hopeful field for the development of the decentralization idea."

Utilities Could Aid Recovery

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

The utility group has played an obscure role in financial news dispatches of late, with the exception of the inadequacy of production facilities in a war emergency, and their ability to move up with the general market has occasioned some surprise.

[illegible]

• • •

The stock market as measured by the averages has been boosted back into the sidewise congestion area that followed the establishment of early summer recovery highs on increased expectations of a settlement of the whole Czech problem.

While we would not want to take anything from the news such behavior is on line with prescribed technical action. Often prices make just such a return to an area which they have positively quit.

GOOD NEWS

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—Barring an upset from a European war, the metal-working industry is marching ahead to much improved conditions this fall, according to American Machinist today. Reports from various sectors of the industry reveal the trend toward increased sales and production. Machine tool orders continued in August their upward movement from the year's low in May.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 — A fairly widespread though small increase in bank credit to business and agriculture was recorded the week ended September 14 by member banks in 101 cities, with increases in such loans in eight of the 12 Federal Reserve districts. The previous week nine districts showed gains. The total was $4,905,000,000, against $4,888,000,000 a week before. Recent low was $4,865,000,000 August 3.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 21 — Consumption of Lake Superior iron ore during August crossed the 2,000,000 ton mark for the first month this year the Lake Superior Iron Association reported today. Supplies on hand at furnaces and Lake Erie docks as of September 1 is the highest level for that date in any year on record.

Due to reduced fares and improved business conditions, passenger travel on American Airlines Inc. between Boston and New York City was up 46.1 per cent during August over July, this year, it was announced today by W. T. Ison Bump, District Sales Manager for American Airlines Inc.

"The Democratic voters have made their decision," said the Governor. "I accept it and offer my congratulations to the victor, Honorable James M. Curley.

"I am grateful with all my heart to every man and woman in Massachusetts who supported my candidacy, and to the party which has so signally honored me in the past."

At Hurley headquarters in the Hotel Westminster, workers dolefully regarded a collection of red fire and noisemakers, purchased in anticipation of a Hurley victory, now "anybody's who wants them."

Lieutenant Governor Francis E. Kelly today blamed lack of campaign funds for his defeat and urged that a limit be set on expenditures made in behalf of any candidate. His statement read:

"Congratulations to the winner. I desire to thank from the bottom of my heart my many loyal, volunteer workers in all sections of the state who assisted me in my contest against such tremendous odds.

"The results prove to me that a lieutenant governor with a campaign fund of only $16,000 can not be nominated governor of Massachusetts even though the lieutenant governor possesses an unassailable record and a liberal and progressive program.

"It seems to me, as a matter of fair play to all candidates and justice to the people that a limit should be established by law as to the amount of money that can be expended in behalf of any candidate for governor. Unless this is done it may bar forever a man of moderate circumstances from the governorship of Massachusetts."

Curley Carries 20 Of Boston Wards

Former Governor James M. Curley in his victorious sweep through Massachusetts carried 20 of the 22 wards of Boston, Lieutenant Governor Francis E. Kelly, the former Governor's only Boston opponent, carried one ward, the district he represented in the City Council, Ward 15, Dorchester.

Governor Charles F. Hurley, in late returns was likewise carrying only one ward, Ward 20, West Roxbury.

15 Congress Candidates All Renominated

All of Massachusetts' [illegible] were renominated today [illegible] Democratic and Republican [illegible] conventions, [illegible] Democrat.

Of [illegible] interest in the [illegible] anticipated contests [illegible] which looms between Thomas Eliot, Cambridge "New Deal" Democrat whose task it will be to unseat the veteran Republican of that district, Robert Luce, Waltham.

The other contest looms between Congressman Joseph E. Casey of Clinton (D.) and J. Walton Tuttle of Framingham, veteran member of the Massachusetts legislature and practicing lawyer in spite of total blindness.

All of the other congressmen seem to have an easy task in winning re-election in November.

For Congress

DISTRICT 1 "Allen T. Treadway (R.), incumbent. No Democratic candidate.

DISTRICT 2 "Charles R. Clason (R.), Springfield. No Democratic candidate.

DISTRICT 3 "Joseph E. Casey (D.), Clinton. J. Walton Tuttle (R.), Framingham.

Sunday Advertiser Right!

Pre-Primary Poll Accurate

Curley, Hurley, Kelly, Russell—1, 2, 3, 4! That was the way the Boston Sunday Advertiser picked them last Sunday, and that's the way it turned out!

Political leaders today acclaimed The Boston Sunday Advertiser's poll, taken in Boston and Cambridge and in six other major cities as one of the most accurate pre-election canvasses ever made.

The Boston Sunday Advertiser predicted Curley would receive 37 per cent of the total Democratic vote. On the basis of complete returns, he has received 41 per cent.

POLL'S ACCURACY

It named Hurley for second place predicting he would receive 32 per cent of the vote. On the basis of latest returns, he is second with 30 per cent.

Kelly, the poll showed, would come in third with 21 per cent of the vote. He came in third with 19 per cent.

Russell, it was predicted, would be last, with 10 per cent. He is last, with a little over 6 per cent.

The poll was taken according to the latest approved scientific method. The old way was to broadcast as many "straw votes" as possible in an effort to duplicate, as far as possible, the election itself.

The new way might be called the "slice of cake" method, based upon the theory that if you slice a piece out of a cake, no matter how thin the slice is, if it is sliced accurately it will show all the layers.

CONSERVATIVE TEST

Thus the Boston Sunday Advertiser "sliced" the Massachusetts Democratic "cake" by taking its poll, first, in just eight representative cities, and, second, by taking just exactly 100 ballots in each of a total of 63 wards in these cities.

This total of 63 wards consisted of 22 selected wards in Boston, 11 in Cambridge, and all wards in Worcester, Fall River, Lynn, Springfield, Lawrence and Lowell.

In Boston alone, the Sunday Advertiser's poll indicated, Curley

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 21—Never in your wildest imagination would you compare the shy, lanky, homespun Jimmy Stewart with the flashy, cocky personality of Tom Mix. Yet Jimmy steps in Tom's shoes at Universal when he inherits the top role in "Destry Rides Again."

Louella O. Parsons

Jimmy, who is a prime favorite in the newest would sign a movie contract and today it happened Walter Wanger tested Mort for Wanger Carnival" and then signed him for the role for which he was trying to borrow Bing Crosby.

Sisters on Met Screen

PRISCILLA LANE and Gale Page, who play the roles of sisters in "Four Daughters," are shown in a tense scene from the film which opens tomorrow at the Metropolitan.

'Four Daughters' Opens On Met Screen Tomorrow

Jules Garfield, who scored such a hit in "Golden Boy," last season on Broadway, has become Jon Garfield a Warner discovery and featured performer in "Four Daughters," opening tomorrow on the Metropolitan screen.

In "Golden Boy" Garfield dies in a bullet accident on Long Island. It was this tragic fact behind the scenes that set the boy's modern problem confused and less correct for him. In "Four Daughters" he plays a role and dies shortly on a bus ride and some few hours later.

Garfield says he has a hard time to decide accurately. And that's why he can take a bit and I have to bow! By a perfect resolution

'Daffy' Dean Faces Bees in 1st Game

Austen Lake:

The Man Who Was Too Busy Laughing

THE SELF-EFFACING HALF OF baseball's eccentric brother act, "Me an' Paul" Dean, sat breakfasting in a Back Bay basement cafe. Paul Dean, back with the St. Louis Cardinals on approval, filtered his talk through his food, speaking little about himself but much about brother Dizzy. Clearly three years of separation had not lessened his small-boy adoration for his elder. Paul's attitude toward Diz still remains that of a barefoot, raggetty-pantsed urchin, pop-eyed with admiration for the posturings and brash wisdom of the bigger boy.

AUSTEN LAKE

"What about Diz now?" I asked Paul.

"I think he's a great dam man," he said a little aggressively. He stopped a forkful of bacon near his mouth and looked searchingly for any signs of doubt. "He's an asset to any ball club. He's got everythin'—color, brains and stuff." Then, by way of justification, "An' that ain't because he's my brother."

[illegible]

Diz Told Him So

[illegible]

But, when I said, Is your trouble anything like Diz's? the forced gates of restraint were opened. "I don't know about me," said Paul, "but Diz is a sure lire and is come back, good never."

[illegible]

"I talk with Diz regular every week," said Paul. He tol' me so."

[illegible]

"WHAT WAS DIZ LIKE WHEN YOU and he were kids?" I asked Paul.

[illegible]

"Diz," said he, "was always a caution. He'd say and do things fit to bust your ribs laughin'. He was always riggin' up some kind of a joke like puttin' overalls on somebody's cow or settin' pigeons loose in the ladies' socials.

Diz was good company on account of he could talk, an' anytime there was a party Diz was first to be asked so's to keep the life movin' and everybody laughin'. He was a great hand to take anybody off an' he'd stick on a cornsil, mustach an' maybe walk bandylegged or talk in a kind of jackie and sound swear it was one of the neighbors."

[illegible]

But what about you, Paul, I asked. Did you help him think up the fun?

Me, said Paul, surprised. No. Diz didn't need nobody to think up fun. He could think up about nine fields all by himself. I was too busy laughin'.

[illegible]

"I had a nice [illegible] but I couldn't come close to Diz's change of pace and his curve. Diz was just born with plenty of everythin'."

Then, as an after thought, he said, "Boy eff'n I had Diz's color, I'da gone places."

(1938 [illegible] Paul)

"HEN I COULD only pitch like Diz," Paul Dean, right, tells Cards' new catcher, Don Padgett, of his brother's greatness. A 1934 World Series hero, Paul has just returned to the Cards after a sojourn at Houston.

Backfield Tops 'n Local Circles

By WILL CONNELL

[illegible]

We'll have a good ball team he said today [illegible]

Bill Osmanski

"We lost Carnegie Tech beat Georgia by a point and Colgate by five points. Tied Temple and had 20 points on Boston College last year. Improvement on Brown and Providence were hard one touchdown wins. We've added Rhode Island State and Manhattan.

Carnegie, Georgia and Colgate will be no worse than last year. Temple will be stronger. Boston College may be better. Manhattan and R. I. State are major games.

"You know a coach's problem is his opposition. You may have a real team ready, but if the other teams happen to be at tops for you several weeks running it's too bad."

The good doctor has a crack veteran backfield and the stiff side of the [illegible] schedule. Center and the right side of the line are uncertain.

Maybe he foresees backfield worry for the loss of the veteran [illegible] will be lost.

Here's Captain Eddie Bezdek's [illegible] Jeep Kelly, fullback and Jim Osmanski, halfback. Charles Peterson, Frank Legan, Jim O'Neil and Jack Wheat, centers. Jack Ledgard and Jim Fuller, guards, Joe Zaccardi and Walter Wenstrom, tackles, Ed Hester and Ed O'Brien, ends [illegible] on the first line. Ed Starling, veteran, a whisker back, is [illegible]

Ends Jim Perry, John Mendes, John Gaucher, John Beaumont, Jack Mergel, tackles, Vic Demopoulos, Pete Manoli, Jack Keller, Jack Donahey, guards, Ray Mennino, Ed Eichorn, Louis Frost and Frank Gazzone.

Yes there's plenty of football material there. The coaching is top flight. Holy Cross spirit always has been something to write about.

The Crusaders should beat Fleet-dener this Saturday on Fitton Field here.

But after that it's fate puts on her fall lemon dress, the deluge. It will be a series of close shaves furnishing the customers with some of the best entertainment of 1938.

Hockey Magnates To Hold Huddle ¦ Brouillard Always Produces Action

By JACK CONWAY

WHILE FOOTBALL is trying to compel baseball and racing to share some of the sports spotlight with it, hockey is crowding its way into the picture . . . The National Hockey League will hold a meeting at Toronto on Saturday at which plans will be discussed for the season that opens early in November.

Mr. Boston

The National Hockey League will operate with seven clubs . . . The Montreal Maroons failed to transfer their franchise to some other city as was originally expected, and have sold their stars . . . Hockey ran into serious reverses in Montreal, and it was decided that the town isn't big enough for two clubs.

This crash of the Maroons proves the wisdom of Charles F. Adams who, as owner of the Bruins, repeatedly refused to allow a second team to come into Boston . . . Cecil Hart, famous hockey manager, was among those persons who at times tried to get Adams to permit Boston to have two clubs . . . If Adams had wished, he could have had a substantial stock interest in the proposed second club, but he always turned down such offers . . . One hockey club does very well here financially, but if there were two clubs in this city it is possible that neither would succeed.

Hockey is a fast, exciting game, and furninshes the kind of sports thrills demanded by the American public . . . The Bruins will rely on youth to keep them in the fight for the Stanley Cup during the coming season . . . The failure of the Bruins to win a single game against the Toronto Maple Leafs in the playoffs last season was a tremendous disappointment to Manager Art Ross and to the public.

Frank Ryan, of course, will once more act as public relations counsel for the Bruins and will divide his time in this respect between his news releases and his radio accounts of the games away from home.

Brouillard Always Gives Action

NOW THAT the political battles are over for a few weeks, boxing fans will devote their attention to the 10-round bout between Lou Brouillard and Joe Glasgow, which will be staged by the Goodwin A. C. at the Garden on Friday night . . . I have been watching Brouillard in action since Sergeant Eddie Mack first brought him down from Worcester to box in semifinals at the Arena . . . Lou later went on to win the world's welterweight and middleweight championships . . . He has always given intensified action whether he has won or lost.

Brouillard will be defending his New England middleweight championship when he collides with Glasgow at the Garden on Friday night . . . Lou is anxious to prove he is still one of the world's leading middleweights . . . If he wins he will toss a challenge at Al Hostak, who won the middleweight crown when he knocked out Freddy Steele in a round.

The middleweight class is a weak one, and with a few victories Brouillard would be rubbing elbows with the leaders once more . . . Jeff Dickson has cabled Brouillard an attractive offer for three bouts in Europe, but to gain these matches he must first prove he is his old self again by disposing of Glasgow.

Friday night's tussle will give Glasgow an opportunity to step into select fistic company . . . The Quincy youngster is a strong, aggressive boxer, and likes to toss blows with both dukes.

Ken Kling Day at Rockingham

THERE WILL be a Day for Ken Kling, Daily Record sports cartoonist, at Rockingham Park on Oct. 3, and in the evening a dinner at Benny Ginsberg's Club Mayfair . . . Ken Kling's characters, Joe and Asbestos, have been among the few who have been successful in beating the races . . . Ken has picked the spots for his interesting characters, and they have then paraded to the betting rings and taken the elastic off their bankrolls.

Kling owns his own racing stable, and many of his horses have raced at New England tracks . . . Ken, of course, will make a personal appearance at Rockingham Park on Monday, Oct. 3 . . . He will present the trophy in the Ken Kling Handicap, while he will also supervise the ceremonies in the Joe and Asbestos Handicap . . . At the Club Mayfair the famous cartoonist will drink a champagne toast, and says he will also pour the sparkling water for Joe and Asbestos if they help him come up with a few winners at Rockingham.

Random Shots at Target

BILL SCULLY was as disappointed as some of the primary candidates when rain made it necessary for him to postpone the football clash between the Shamrocks and Pirates until next Monday night . . . It would have been necessary to have equipped the players with rowboats and life preservers if a football game had been attempted last night . . . If the Shamrocks play to large crowds this season Scully will have a strong argument to demand admission to the National League.

Fishermen Headed for Great Year

By SAM BROGNA

Not since the days of the sensational Teddy Williams, who is now matriculating at Notre Dame, have the fans, coaches, and "Nate" Ross particularly, become so excited as over the present Gloucester High football aggregation.

The fans along the North Shore route well remember that memorable year, 1934, in which Williams put Gloucester on the football map by his versatile play. Well this year, the fishermen not only have a Williams in the person of Captain Anthony "Moot" Albert, but have also the Curcuru brothers, Phil and Joe, Russ O'Maley and a veteran line that is expected to surpass all elevens that represented Gloucester High in the past.

This season, with Nate Ross installing his intricate system which is expected to spell defeat for their opponents, the Fishermen stand their best chance of enjoying an undefeated year—the first in many years. These plays were put into effect in the opening game against Newburyport High in last week's opener and the boys not only drubbed the "Pikers" but became the talk of the North Shore with their razzle-dazzle.

The reason for the boys tossing the ball around so masterfully is due to the fact that they all play basketball.

With the exception of Bob Porper, ace end, who is ineligible at present, every regular of last year's team is back. The backfield of Albert, O'Maley, a converted guard and the Curcuro brothers, more commonly known as the "basketball backfield," is hailed by many as the best quartet of backs in scholastic ranks this season.

ALBERT GREAT

Albert, whom Coach Ross rates the fastest and shiftiest back in the State, accounted for 12 of the 25 points scored in the opener with runs of 75 and 30 yards. Already, future Gloucester opponents have started the cry, "Stop Albert." According to them, the fleet-footed 155-pound halfback is every bit as slippery and elusive as was Mr. Williams, twice-time all scholastic.

The three other boys are also of versatile quality. The Curcuru brothers specialize in ripping lines apart, bearcats on defense, with Phil doing the kicking and Joe tossing passes. O'Maley, beside doing the brainwork, does almost everything exceptionally well. And then, Ross has Walt Murphy, a shifty climax runner to throw in.

On the forward wall are Ralphie Pino and Ken Stickney, a pair of six-footers, at end; Phil MacDonald, Sam Gemmellaro at tackles, "Fat" Perry, Bumpey Williams at guards, with Walt MacFarland, a four-year center, back at the same position.

General Hugh S. Johnson writes about Washington, every day in the Boston American.

Up And Over Shooting high are the Curcuru brothers, Phil and Joe, Gloucester high school backs. They are hurdling Phil MacDonald and Sam Gemmellaro, veteran linemen. (Veator photo.)

Boat Club Races Set for Week-End

The Medford Boat Club will stage a "race week-end" with prizes for high point scorers.

The following classes will compete: Comets, Baby Stars, Snites and a handicap race. Thirty-five to 40 boats are expected to take part in the races. Stephen O. Holt and Commodore Samuel Lanza, Medford Boat Club, will be in charge.

Want to Sell Eye?

Man Wants One to See Series

RICHLANDS, Va., Sept. 21 (AP)—A storekeeper, blind for 20 years, placed the World Series today at the top of the list of things he wants to see with an eye he has offered to buy for a "reasonable sum."

M. O. Warner said he wanted a speedy, successful operation so that he might see his favorite Pittsburgh Pirates play the New York Yankees for the world's championship in baseball.

The merchant is "strongly considering" three of 134 offers of eyes he has received from 39 states and Canada. One is from Michigan, another from Salt Lake City and the third from L. E. Lawson, 26, who lives six miles from North Tazewell, Va.

Lawson walked into Warner's store and offered to sell either eye for $400, the lowest price yet quoted. Other offers of sale have ranged as high as $25,000.

Lawson said, "I'm in a tough spot and need the money."

Seven women are among those who have offered to sell him an eye. The other offers come from men ranging in age from 18 to 62.

Warner lost his sight in a premature explosion on a road job.

Fans Side as Mates Play Cards

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21 (AP) — Pitcher Ray Ortiz allowed his infielders and an outfielder to play cards as he hurled the Phoenix, Ariz., Lettuce Kings to the championship of the American Softball Association here.

In the eighth inning, Ortiz called in his teammates and then proceeded to strike out three opposing batters to lead the Arizonians to a 5 to 1 victory over the St. Louis Goldbergs. It was the second and deciding game of the championship.

Tennis Again Washed Out

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 21 (AP)—A record for consecutive washouts by rain was set today as the steady downpour forced the fifth straight postponement of the national tennis championships, now stalled in the semi-finals.

The previous record was set in 1933 when the tournament, scheduled to finish on Saturday, wound up on Thursday.

In the men's, defending champion Don Budge ultimately will meet Sidney Wood, and Gene Mako will tackle the ambidextrous Jack Bromwitch of Australia.

One finalist in the women's division, Nancye Wynne of Australia, awaits the winner of the semi-final between Alice Marble and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan.

Invincibility?—Poof!

Ruth Admits Mark Will Fall

By MORTON MOSS

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (INS)—Once upon a time there was a great big giant labelled, for the purposes of humor, Babe Ruth. Now this giant, who had thin ankles and thick shoulders, was a Yankee even though he was a giant.

Babe Ruth used to amuse himself by taking the stump of a tree and applying it with ponderous power to the puss of a spherical object whose anatomy was constructed of rubber, cork, twine and horsehide.

So potently did the Yankee giant prod the poor pellet that it would wing disconsolately over distant walls, yowling with pain.

Between April and September of 1927, Babe Ruth spanked 60 slapsilly spheres across the barricades which fence off large gardens in many townships of our land.

MAY GO THIS YEAR

Then the giant began to grow old and weary, and quit his inhuman pastime. Chroniclers of that age were firm in their belief that never again would there be a giant who could catapult spherical objects with such barbaric frenzy.

Today th giant in question, who has been let out to pasture as a harmless Dodger giant, exploded the theory of his eternal invincibility.

"Even if Greenberg doesn't break my record this year," The giant confessed to us in a voice a little saddened by remembrance of his glory, "I'm pretty certain that somebody will eventually top sixty home runs."

Somehow we were shocked even though we brought the whole thing on by our own inquisitiveness.

It must have been because we had glimpsed the giant in the days of his greatness and could not really ever believe that there might be another gifted with similar gargantuan genius.

And yet here was the giant himself telling us that the world would see more marvelous giants than he was.

"Of course, my record will be broken," the giant said with the coolness of a resigned soul. "I don't see why not. All those marks fall, don't they?

"There's nothing I can do about it. And when it does go I'll be ready to congratulate whoever breaks it."

HAS-BEENS SAD

Still round-heeled from the giant's candid comment, we wondered aloud what he thought of the pretensions to superior giant-hood of Detroit's Hankus Greenberg, a forward youth with 33 all-the-way-around bifferoos in the bank.

"Greenberg is making a good try for the mark, but he's got a pretty tough task ahead of him," the giant replied. "He'll have to hit them fast from now on. I remember the year I walloped 60, I slugged them one after another that last week or two.

"The final push is hard on a fellow," he gave an insider's view of the trials and tribulations of a giant. "The pressure isn't any fun. But he may do it. He's a swell kid and is sure giving it a grand try."

"What are your plans for next season?" we asked the giant who had just shattered us with the information that he wasn't such a wonderful giant after all.

"I haven't got any plans," the giant said, with what sounded to us like a tinge of bitterness.

There ought to be a law making it impossible for giants ever to become ex-giants.

Turnesa

Recovers Club

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 21 (AP)—Willie Turnesa's "Mary Ann," charmed putter which he lost in the excitement of winning the national amateur golf championship, speeded to Turnesa's home in Elmsford, N. Y., today aboard a mail train.

An unidentified man telephoned a Pittsburgh newspaper (Post-Gazette) last night and admitted he had picked up the putter after it had fallen out of Turnesa's bag at the conclusion of Turnesa's title match with Bat Abbott last Saturday at Oakmont. The caller added that the club was on its way to the amateur champion.

Eli Tackle Reports For Duty

By the Associated Press

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 21—There's some real competition for places on the Maryland varsity squad this week. Coach Frank Dobson has picked 20 players for the team that will oppose Richmond Saturday and has six or seven places left to fill. There are about 40 players trying to win those berths.

GALE'S FERRY, Ct.—Bill John, veteran Yale tackle, apparently is one football player who doesn't believe in wasting time. He didn't report to the Eli camp until yesterday, but he stepped right into stiff scrimmage after convincing the coaches he was in condition.

IOWA CITY—Coach Irl Tubbs must believe he has something worth seeing on his University of Iowa squad. After secret morning and afternoon practice sessions yesterday, he invited the general public in to see the Hawkeyes go through their paces. The lineup he displayed, which is expected to start against P.C.L.A at Los Angeles Friday night averaged 218 pounds in the line and 195 in the backfield.

NEW YORK—Bill Stanton, Fordham's kicking specialist, claims he got his greatest kick out of his greatest kick. He says the biggest thrill he ever got on a football field was when he kicked the point after touchdown that enabled the Rams to beat Texas Christian, 7-6, last season.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.—Saturday's game between North Carolina and Wake Forest is long on history, but this year's teams will be short on experience. The series dates back 50 years to when these institutions introduced football to North Carolina. But the 1938 starters are expected to include eight Wake Forest sophomores and six Caroline newcomers.

LINCOLN, Neb.—Although there haven't been any serious injuries on the Nebraska squad, Coach Biff Jones is having a hard time getting all the regulars together at once for practice. Due to an epidemic of minor hurts, he didn't have the full regular lineup on hand for a week until yesterday and then Quarterback Thurston Phelps still was playing "under wraps."

DENVER—Bill Saunders, Denver University grid coach, is beating the tom-toms for his 180-pound back, Orlando Maio. Saunders contends Maio is faster than Whizzer White "and just as powerful." All Maio needs, says his coach, is "the confidence White has in himself."

Hole-in-Oner In Tourney

Former hole-in-one victors, including Francis Rowbotham, the only one ever to sink an "ace," since the tourney was started by the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser six years ago, will be among those in line Thursday morning at 10 o'clock when play starts on the specially constructed layout at Franklin Park, alongside the first tee of the Scarborough course.

Novices have as much chance as expert golfers in their bid to sink a hole-in-one.

With the distance 120 yards from the tee, the merry battle will start, with Acting Mayor John E. Kerrigan and Park Commissioner Long starting the tourney.

From everywhere contestants will be on hand to shoot at the cup.

Alabama will match southern California's 11 quarterbacks Saturday with the beefiest bunch of tackles you ever saw in collitch football. Five of the seven weigh 210 or more in their bare feet . . . The Pirates probably will be in there, but this corner still says the Cubs would give the Yanks a better battle b a t t l e . . . Georgetown University's football team this year will be just a bunch of boys named Joe—they have five of 'em . . . On the other hand, Charlie Bachman of Michigan State can sit back and let George do it—he has five of them.

Mickey Cochrane

One for the book: The first, second, third and fourth-string quarterbacks on the Fredericksburg (Va.) High grid squad are southpaw passers . . . There seems to be no hard feeling between Mickey Cochran and the Tiger owners. The other night Mickey was a guest at t reception in owner Walter Briggs' home . . . Lightweight fighters can look out for Bobby Sylvester of Sarasota, Fla. The boys down that way want no part of him and it might be a good time to paste in your hat . . . Bobby Walthour has given up six-day bike racing and is a studio employe at Culver City. His oldest boy had a bit in "Boys' Town."

According to the Pittsburgh papers, Sonny Martin, Pittsburgh, knocked out Sonny Martin, Florida, the other night . . . Are you listening, Mr. Ripley . . . This is golf for you: The other afternoon Bill Brickley carded an eagle three on the 475-yard 15th hole of the Rockaway course, Kitchener, Ont. But But his partner, Lloyd Tucker, took the hole away from him by sinking his approach for a double eagle two on the par five hole . . . ouch!

Charlie Dressen

If Jersey City hadn't grabbed Bert Niehoff, he could have landed with Minneapolis . . . And if Charlie Dressen isn't signed by the Dodgers, he'll be welcome up in the northwest if Fay Murray will let him go . . . The Rine family collects tennis titles down in Moundville, W. 4 Corners

Middies From Afar

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 21 (INS)—The Navy backfield is completely inter-sectional this year, covering four separate divisions of the nation, a checkup disclosed.

Lem Cooke, leading passer and runner last year, is from Hernando, Miss., and his side partner, chunky Emmet Wood, from Wilkinsburg, Pa. Monty Whiteford, quadruple threat—he can take passes, as well as throw them, carry the ball and punt—is from Hartford, Ct., and big Ed Gillette, the blocker, hails from Santa Monica, Cal.

Bugs Writes:

Rain, Gravy To Buccs

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Copyright, 1938, by International News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (INS)—In a ponderous decision handed down, Judge Pecora decided it was raining. If this keeps up Brother Noah will be yelling for blotting paper. It's wetter than a fish's face.

Gabby Hartnett refused a fielder's choice when he turned down a chance to play Brooklyn a postponed double-header. We thought Gabby was a playing manager.

Maybe he is right. The Cubs are way past the double-header stage. The only way they can get all their contests now is to take a teaspoonful every hour. The Reds and the Giants are in it to their necks like a hiding ostrich. And the Pirates are busier than the motorman on a one-man trolley car.

The Cubs get a tough break in Philadelphia for they figured to take four on toast. Every day it rains it makes it better for Pittsburgh. It may be rain for Chicago but it's gravy for the Pirates.

The Redsinnati have the edge on Cubago for they have the best pitching staff and seven games to play with Pittsburgh. That should make the finish closer than knock knees.

The Pirates are still their usual three-and-a-half games to the north. They would be perfectly delighted to finish the season under umbrellas. If nobody ever plays it won't be any pin feathers off their turkey.
